The Handbook on Third-Party Funding in International Arbitration, supported by the ABA Section of International Law and published by Juris Publishing, provides a comprehensive review of the complex legal and ethical framework associated with TPF, including exploring many practical practitioner issues never before addressed by law, courts or scholars. The Handbook comprises six general chapters and 25 country-specific reports, written by fifty-five authors with outstanding experience in international arbitration and case financing.

Partners Kenneth B. Reisenfeld, Gonzalo S. Zeballos and Paul M. Levine of BakerHostetler's International Arbitration and Litigation Team contributed chapters for this important resource book.
